What Kind of a World Do We Want? Neither Germany nor Britain has stated with any directness, its war aims-the kind of Europe and the kind of world they would like to see emerge from the war. As long as both are locked in death grips, it isn't likely As long as both are locked in death grips, it isn't likely that either will. Once at war, the only object is to win. Remolding the world comes afterward.

There can be no harm, therefore, and perhaps some good, in speculation about these things in the U. S.

We had a hand once in rearranging Europe, It was a reluctant hand, as shown by the fact that the U. S. fought only'as an "associated," never an "allied" power, and that it never did sign the Versailles treaty, but made a separate peace with Gennany later (Treaty of Berlin, 1921). Most of the suggestions we made in 1919 were rejected, and even those which were adopted did not work very well.

Yet when Senator Wheeler issued his recent prescription for Europe, his 1941 version of a Wilsonian Fourteen Pointa, what did he propose? Nothing better than another of those interminable reshufflings, re-carvings, of the European map.

It seems doubtful if anything like that will do this time. No matter who wins, the defeated people will remain a fact, and a stubborn fact. Germany was beaten, and thoroughly beaten in 1918, but the German people remained a fact. The Prench people were beaten this time, and terribly beaten but they remain a fact, as Herr littler is already beginning to discover. Franco already knows that, despite the shooting and executions, that the large republican element in his people remains a fact, and the Norwegian people are facts, and the Polish and Czech, and the Belgian, and the Polish and Czech, and set will be seen that the second of the seco It seems doubtful if anything like that will do this time

Europe must federate or die Not as the Caesars federated it or as Napoleon tried to federate it, under a single master working the other people as slaves—such a federation leaves afe no country in the world.

freedom of shipping and intercourse and trade in such a way that all can live.

The U. S. can certainly impose no such order in Europe, no would it be so foolish as to try. Yet Europe itself has produced almost no leadership with such a vision.

Income Tax Warning

Even if you never before made an income tax return, you may be required to make one in March, so get ready. Only the 7,000,000 people who made returns in 1940 will receive blanks from the treasury department. But another 8,000,000 will have to file returns this year, though they never did before, and therefore will receive no blanks. It is up to them to get the blanks themselves.

The more-than-double number making a return is due the more-man-source number making a return is one to the fact that this year every individual having a gross income of $800 or more, or married people living together with a combined gross income of $2,000 or more, must file a return. Hitherto the figure determining whether one filed a return was a net figure, now it is gross—all incomes regard-less of exemptions. Probably less than half of the 15,000,000 people expected to file a return this year will have to pay a tax when exemptions are taken and calculations are made.

But the return must be made, nevertheless. Most of these newcomers in the Income Tax club don't know all the angles as yet. The deadline is March 15, let us remind them, and it's not too soon to begin getting together their information and preparing to get the blank, fill it out, and file it.

It seems they quarry (or what the heck is the cond?) a quantity of sand at Josepfina, which is said at Guayaquil for making concrete and other onstruction purposes. Water is the only form of ransportation thereabouts, and the haul is several

Big rafts made of balsa wood are loaded with the empty rafts are floated back again on the reverse tide!
