WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—(UP)—

Democracy of the house judiciary affairs committee today voted to hear three high military and naval officials in closed session, President Roosevelt's British ally after a republican members valiantly had sought an open hearing.

After reaching this decision at a private meeting, the democrats rejoined the republicans, who meantime had held a rump session.

The officials to be heard are Gen. George Marshall, army chief of staff, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and Maj. Gen. George Brett, acting chief of the army air corps.

The three had been invited by Rep. Hamilton Fish, Rep. N. Y., to testify this morning, but when the committee assembled Rep. Luther A. Johnson, Dem. Tex., asked for an executive session, and the democrats voted for it. The republicans boycotted the session.

Fish charged that the democrats were "afraid to hear" the testimony that the military men intended to offer in connection with statements made yesterday by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who opposed aid to Britain.

Purves informed, filed with the board of county commissioners, said in part: "It is my suggestion that the legal action be instituted for that amount ($1,000) and in the event the same is not forthcoming that legal action be instituted against Mr. Bubar and also against the Schroeders . . . and the transaction be declared void by the court and ask the court to set aside against Bubar in the above amount."

The county commissioners will view the land in question Monday.
