FAMOUS BOOKS BURN ON PYRE IN GERMANY

Goebbels Asserts Period of Jewish Intellectualism Is Ended.

BERLIN. (AP). Books of Helen Keller, Franz Boas and Jack London as well as hundreds of German authors went up in smoke throughout Germany. University men and women, pronouncing judgment on world literature considered as contravening German spirit, started huge bonfires of the volumes shortly before midnight.

Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, pronounced the government's blessings and declared that "the period of Jewish intellectualism now has ended." The weird glow illuminated opera square opposite Berlin university as the students, garbed in the picturesque costumes of their fraternities, the Nazi brown or the steel helmet grey, threw a thousand torches on the pyre, then seized the books from trucks and hurled them into the blaze amid cheers.

The names of German writers such as Heinrich Mann, Emil Ludwig, Erich Remarque, Theodor Wolff and George Bernhard were read out as their writings were consigned to the fire. Ludwig and Remarque were especially boozed by the vast crowd of spectators. The names of foreign authors on the proscription list, however, were not mentioned.

Dr. Goebbels - declared "as you had the right to destroy the books, you had the duty to support the government. The fire signals to the entire world that the November revolutionaries have sunk to earth and a new spirit has arisen." He pleaded for the students to recognize as comrades men in all walks of life as a sign to the world that Germany is completely united.
