

Will Work Millenium or Bust

Hitler's German recovery act is more picturesque and diversified than ours. Not content with taking over the churches and substituting his national code for the Sermon on the Mount, so making himself a sort of high priest for the nation, he has now become consulting surgeon. His plan for the sterilization of the unfit may sound pretty good until it comes down to making Adolf judge in the matter of who is fit and who is unfit. Adolf must be going to take over the attributes of immortality. He can hardly expect to see his experiment come through unless he sticks around to supervise the new eugenic scheme he is now proclaiming. If Hitler lasts long enough and the people under him are willing to remain subservient he ought to work the millenium or bust.

The state office building these days is no place to look for familiar faces.

Reasonable caution has probably saved more people from drowning than ability to swim.

The blanket code will probably come into operation about the time of the return of frosty nights.

Barbers seem to be of the opinion that a vogue of Balbo whiskers would aid them more than NRA.

A daughter of some enthusiast has been named NIRA. Begins to look as if the country were safe for another generation.

President Roosevelt might do his bit for the national recovery administration by taking a lot of jobless professors into his brain trust.

Muskegon has just voted against return of the old ward system in that city. The ward, once it has evaporated, has few to shed tears over it.
