

AMERICAN JEWS DRAFT 4 'DEMANDS.'

New York, March 26.—(AP)—While 2,200 Jews applauded and cheered, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, honorary president of the American Jewish congress, announced today during a sermon that the congress will transmit Monday to the German government, through Ambassador Wilhelm von Prittwitz, four vital "demands."

They are:

"1. There must be an immediate cessation of all anti-Semitic activities and propoganda in Germany. . . ."

"2. The abandonment of the policy of racial discrimination against and of economic exclusion of Jews from the life of Germany. . . ."

"3. The protection of Jewish life and property.

"4. There shall not be an expulsion of 'ost Juden', Jews who have come into Germany since 1914."

"There are our demands," Rabbi Wise told his congregation. "If these demands be granted, as God knows they ought to be, there will be an end of every plan and undertaking of protest."

Berlin, March 31.—(AP)—The government stepped in at the last minute today with an order that the anti-Jewish boycott, which is to start at 10 A. M. Saturday, will last one day only and then will be held in abeyance until Wednesday.

This action, taken after considerable pressure had been brought to bear to prevent disruption of the nation's business life, led some observers to assert that the boycott movement would be dropped entirely after the single day.

Joseph Goebbels, cabinet minister of propaganda, signed the order which signaled the first official move in the boycott situation. It was the Nazi party of Chancellor Hitler, rather than the government itself, which ordered the nation-wide repressive measures.

To Await Respite Results.

Dr. Goebbels asserted in his proclamation that the interim between the end of the one-day boycott and Wednesday should be considered as a respite. In this interim the government hopes that no more reports of anti-Jewish atrocities in Germany will be printed in newspapers abroad.

If foreign propaganda has not been ended by 10 A. M. Wednesday, Dr. Goebbels said, the boycott will be resumed "with full force and vehemence which until now has been undreamed of."

The minister of propaganda preceded his reading of the government boycott manifesto to a packed Nazi meeting by a declaration of Nazi antipathy toward the Jews. He whipped the crowd into a frenzy and there were scattered shouts of "hang them."

Dr. Goebbels accused the Jews of taking bread from German workers by agitating an international anti-German boycott.

"When American and English Jews attack the German government," he said, "we cannot hinder the German people from attacking German Jews. We did not plan to open this question immediately. We had more important things to do. We endured the Jews, and what was their gratitude?"

Einstein Blamed.

"German Jews can thank the wandering Jews Einstein and Feuchtwanger."

At this point there were cries of "hang them" (Prof. Albert Einstein has announced that he will not set foot on German soil so long as conditions in Germany remain as they are. Edouard Feuchtwanger has written numerous articles for publications outside of Germany attacking the Nazis on the ground of anti-Semitism.)

Dr. Goebbels ridiculed stories abroad that Nazis had criminally attacked Jewish girls.

"Two millions arise in their graves," he continued, "to clamor for punishment for Jews like Arnold Zweig, who said at the funeral of Dr. Walter Rathenau, 'Here is one Jew who dared bite his teeth.'"

(Rathenau, statesman and industrialist, died in 1922. He had held numerous portfolios in the German cabinet. He was assassinated by a group of young Germans.)

"We have not hurt one Jewish hair," Dr. Goebbels said, "but if New York and London boycott German goods, we will take off our gloves."

Dr. Goebbels' proclamation set forth that the government had "observed with satisfaction that reports of atrocities are ceasing."

The propaganda minister also issued a set of boycott rules, declaring:

That no banks must be closed.

That Nazis must not enter boycotted premises.

That the boycott must be kept
